DAVENPORT --Minute of a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Home Title Insurance Company of New York held Feb. 17, 1920.

We meet to-day under most distressing circumstances. Our beloved President, Mr. Henry B. Davenport, is no more. He left this office about twenty minutes of six yesterday afternoon apparently in the best of health and spirits, bidding us remaining a cheery good night. Within five minutes after reaghing home and greeting his wife he had passed We are unable to quickly away. enough recover from the shock to adequately estimate how much as a mpany and as individuals we owe to the splendid personality of our departed friend. Ever buoyant and hopeful, with far seeing vision and almost unerring judgment, he laid foundations for structures which will be enduring, and bless not only the present but future generations. His sweet and wholesome and inspiring influence will abide and be our guid? ing star. For fourteen years it was delightful privilege to be associated with this prince of men in the work and upbuilding of this Conpany which he founded and loved and which, perhaps, will be his most enduring monument. His was a which attracted and held all who The humblest felt at case in his presence and the greatest were proud to claim his acquaintance. His life none of it of a selfish kind, all that he did being for the helpfulness and benefit of others more than for himself. One of his last and most prized achievements was the organizing of great and growing beneficence to the community is evidenced by the fact that within three short years it has accumulated assets of about three and one-balf million dollars. It is destined to be a living and lasting monument to our honored leader's
